CHARGES FRAUD IN LANDS OF CREEKS.

Creek Attorney Aids President in Fight Against Haskell.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 28.—M. L. Mott, attorney for the Creek Indians, whose appointment is made with the approval of the secretary of the interior, made public today a statement concerning the transaction of Governor Haskell while a resident of Muskogee, in obtaining title to a large number of Muskogee town lots. Suit is pending against Haskell to recover much of this property for the Creek Indians, to whom it formerly belonged.

Prior to 1900 the only title to town lots in Muskogee was the right of occupancy or possession, obtained from some Indian citizen who had "squatted" on the land when all the land of the Creeks were held in common. When the Creek lands were allotted and provision made for the sale of town lots at public auction to the highest bidder, actual citizens of the different towns were permitted to reserve one lot for a homestead and another for business purposes, for which they were required to pay only half the appraised value fixed by the federal government. All other lots were to be sold at public auction to the highest bidders.

To evade this latter requirement and thereby purchase town lots at half their appraised value, different persons created "straw" men or "dummies" who were represented to the townsite commissions as actual and lawful occupants of lots. When patents were issued to "dummies" many of whom lived in other states, the "dummies" gave a quit-claim deed to the manipulators.

It is this kind of manipulation charged against Governor Haskell by Mott.

New York, Oct. 28.—Contributions amounting to $10,200 were announced by the democratic national committee in this city this afternoon. It is understood that the total amount of subscriptions received by the committee now exceeds $350,000. Herman Ridder, treasurer of the national committee, and his three sons are credited in the list made public today with a total of $37,000. In addition to the Ridder contribution two contributions above $100 were made public—Edward F. Goitra, St. Louis, $3,000, and Morgan J. O'Brien, $500.

"I AM A DEMOCRAT"

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The feature of W. J. Bryan's tour up State today was the appearance on the platform here tonight of former United States Senator David B. Hill. It was the first time in several years that Mr. Hill had attended such a gathering, so that when he stepped forward as chairman to introduce democracy's leader the great crowd which packed the hall where the meeting was held arose and wildly cheered.

Bryan Absolutely Right.

"Although not connected with politics," said Mr. Hill, "I reiterate that I am heartily in favor of the election of the democratic national and state tickets. I am not so partisan, however, that I would support the party right or wrong, but permit me to say that I support the national ticket in this campaign because, in my judgment, our presidential candidate, who honors us with his presence here tonight, is absolutely right upon every contented question in this campaign. I am for him for I sincerely believe the interest of the country will be served by his election. It is time for a change in the administration in the government; a change of measures and men. Our candidate owes the nomination not to any one man nor any set of men, but to the people themselves. If elected he will be the president himself and a dummy for no man. He will not be led around with a string like a great big caged bear."

Ovation for Bryan.

The democratic candidate received an ovation as he arose to speak. He was cheered to the echo and the audience reluctantly obeyed his gesture to them to become quiet. He expressed his appreciation of the cordial welcome he had received "in the capital of our nation's greatest state," and replied to Mr. Hill by saying:

"I appreciate the more than generous words employed by Senator Hill in presenting me to you. One of the pleasures of this campaign is the unity that manifests itself in the democratic party. As the candidate for president of the United States I have behind me a united democratic party and in front of me a scared republican party."

He declared that the democratic party was full of fight, while the republican party was full of fright.

Confidence in Victory.

"I believe," he continued, "that we are going to win a great victory, and, my friends, I am glad that Senator Hill, the hero of so many battlefields, is fighting by my side, prepared to share with me the joys of a democratic triumph. This victory would be incomplete if it were a sectional victory. Put I believe that this victory is going to be won by the co-operation of the east and the west, the north and the south, and that it will cement the democratic party as a fighting force."

Mr. Bryan said he would present "some evidence that will encourage and some arguments in behalf of our position."

First, however, he urged support of the democratic state and congressional tickets, because, he said, they were fighting on the same platform and bearing the brunt of the battle, and therefore deserved the people's suffrage. As he did at Schenectady and other places, he laid stress on the plank for publicity of campaign contributions before election.

Campaign Publicity.

"I asked my national committee," he said, "to publish contributions before the election, and it has done so. I asked our congressional committee to follow the example of the national committee, and it has done so. Mr. Taft's national committee has promised to publish the contributions after the election, when he knows it will be too late to be of advantage to the voters, but the republican congressional committee has not promised to publish the contributions even after election. I now ask Mr. Taft if he will request the congressional committee to announce at once that publication will be made after the election. If not, we will have a right to conclude that the congressional committee of the republican party has to receive the funds that are too tainted to go into treasury of the national committee." "The conscience of the American people," he said, "demanded the inauguration of an era of honesty in politics."

"Can Mr. Taft afford to ignore this demand?" he inquired.

Taft's Labor Record.

Mr. Bryan repeatedly referred to Mr. Taft's labor record. He declared Mr. Taft was the most objectionable public man to laboring men the country has ever known.

Preliminaries for Court House.

The county commissioners are considering the propositions of architects with plans and specifications for a court house for Pontotoc county. Among those conferring about the matter, is Patrick Henry Withers, of Guthrie.

It is to be trusted the preliminaries for a county court house will be completed at the earliest practical time, and the structure built as soon as possible.

This fair, sunshine weather is a most excellent time to have that sidewalk built. You do not want to be out of fashion. Besides, a concrete or brick sidewalk adds to the appearance of your property and enhances its value.

It took a long time to get the one-crop idea entirely out of the heads of the country people, but continual agitation finally accomplished it. It is going to take a long time to educate the country people to the idea that they are entitled to and must have good country roads. When that idea is thoroughly established there is going to be something doing.—Denison Herald.

Innovations are hard to get adopted. People are prone to go along in the same old ruts their grandfathers did. You will even find people in Ada, who are well able to make improvements, opposed to concrete sidewalks and paved streets.

A Merited Honor.

The Oklahoma supreme court has conferred a merited honor on a prominent lawyer of Ada, in the appointment of Judge C. A. Galbraith as special referee in the county seat contest in Jefferson county, where in Waurika and Ryan are the rival towns for the permanent county seat.

The supreme court empowers Judge Galbraith to virtually represent that court, inasmuch as he will have witnesses summoned, hear all the evidence, employ a stenographer, hear any pleas by the contestants, and sum up the result of the findings of the investigation.

In thus honoring Judge Galbraith, Ada is also complimented by the Oklahoma supreme court, and which is appreciated by our people.

Suppose Mr. Taft should be elected and, in token of his appreciation of what Mr. Roosevelt has done for him, should invite the latter into his cabinet. Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

THE SHOE MAN

INCINERATIVE REFORMATION

By Clark Hudson, in Sturm's Oklahoma Magazine

THIS ONE of the old school readers there was a story of the discovery of roast pork. The honor, according to the story, belongs to a Chinese, who kept his pigs among other bric-a-brac in the parlor, from which they were wont to forage into the dining room and recuperate in the reception hall while Mrs. Chink was dusting the piano. At a very unfortunate moment the residence caught fire and was consumed, burning strongly enough to roast the porcine inhabitants thereof, which were found in the debris and ashes, done to a turn. When Mr. Chink arrived and saw the result of the conflagration, he was dismayed; but not until he discovered that his pigs had been burned did he give way to fits of uncontrollable grief. Between sobs he reached down with trembling hands to touch the remains with a last loving caress, whereupon his fingers were burned. Naturally he immersed the scorched digits in his mouth, when lo! his palate was plunged in pleasurable sensations. Not sure of himself he repeated the performance, this time with less grief, and noted the effect. Thereupon he fell to, and, while he carried his hands in bandages for weeks afterwards, he nearly finished the pig. His friends were notified of the wonderful discovery and began to set fire to their houses, until a conflagration promised to envelop the whole country. It was apparent that a house must be burned each time roast pork was on the bill of fare. As I remember, the story does not carry the history of this affair further, but I assume that some martyrs were sacrificed before any other suggestion as to methods for roasting pork was accepted. In the meantime, spare-rib came rather high.

The man who is likely to become a pessimist regarding mankind while pondering a human history filled with such instances may take unto himself consolation in the reflection that, sooner or later, reason usually prevails over all cerebral infirmities excepting incurable insanity.

All this leads up to another look at the story of the Chinese, and an attempt at application to a certain variety of politician infesting and festering the body politic.

Men have not advanced far along the line of reasoning faculties since the Mongolian's discovery when they still burn down houses to get a mess of roast pork.

Speaker Cannon asserts that a Congressman is the greatest coward in America. His statement is borne out by the Congressmen themselves, every time they are whipped in by the Committee on Rules. But not only are Congressmen afflicted thus, for all public officials appear to suffer in a degree; and cowardice blended with hypocrisy creates that most loathsome of political deformities—the demagogue.

A little over a year ago, I had occasion to say a few words in these pages concerning the demagogue—to defend this reptilian creature from certain slighting remarks which those of flippant mind were threatening to make and thus damage a leading infant industry in the new State. In this manner I believe I succeeded in protecting a sufficient number of the species here to at least prevent extinction, and in this statement I submit in evidence, as Exhibit A, the record of statesmanship in the State since that defense appeared. Undoubtedly there can be discerned in this record a sufficient number of tracks to prove the presence of the genera.

It has never been thoroughly plain to me why it is that a man who will converse rationally and discuss philosophically in private conversation will become a fanatic when chosen a member of a legislative or deliberative aggregation, but I have known men to butt into public life by taking first base on a fumble and immediately become possessed by the idea that they were the chosen evangelists of the millennium. There is not much chance for serious argument against the assertion that many men who have become inmates of a public office have been sent to the wrong institution.

Your effervescent statesman is the dry rot that is infesting our political growth. Let a reasonable reform become apparently popular and he veers around at once to assume its leadership, traveling in a swirl of dust like a vaquero heading off a stampede, emitting noises of indescribable horror and exuding copious quantities of sudorous effluvia. Chances are that ere the public learns what the noise is all about he will be at the head of the column with a long tail-feather in his hatband and issuing orders through the megaphone. Thereupon, the public may be led, for a time, by the author of maudlin outeries, into the morass and jungle of fallacy and failure, instead of into the light of reform. The seed of reformation, be it never so healthy, and in the most productive soil, may sprout and spear with promise; but the plant must wither in a simoon of hot air proceeding from raucous and spumiferous demagogues.

Passion and prejudice, the twin progenitors of political insanity, the boll-weevil of intelligence, are the weapons of irresponsible leadership. They are the artillery and side arms of truculent and sanguiniferous politicians, who strut, stride and gesticulate around the country, seeking to overwhelm the public with doltish dogmatism and a deluge of delusory rhetoric.

All for what? Burning down houses to get a mess of roast pork—for themselves.

A man who can or will see but one side is a malformation and his election to a public office is a calamity. His caliber decreases in inverse ratio to the noise of his oracular discharge.

Suppose the people of Oklahoma, for instance, should firmly conclude to put business principles into operation in their public affairs; to control and regulate their business of state as they would their own private matters; to apply common sense and fairness to administration; to lay a strong hand upon all seekers after special privilege whether it be a criminal trust or the match-borrowers' union. And suppose, further, that in order to carry out this policy they should make it their business to nominate and elect in every instance men of reason instead of rant; of business qualifications instead of strepitous verbosity. What would become of the prevalent demagogue?

What, indeed?

He must, perforce, take to the chapparal, where the yawning solitude can swallow up his output without disturbing the progress of civilization. I am convinced, even in the darkest hours of dismay, that the time is soon to come when something besides a thick mat of hair and a wide-rimmed hat will be evidence of political sagacity and statecraft. When that happy hour arrives it will be possible to assemble ourselves in peace and obey that old command: "Come, let us reason together."

Some learned philosophers profess to believe that the American people like so well to be gulled that there will be a continued supremacy for the vaudeville "supe" on our political stage. It's a pessimistic prediction. The country has had so much of vaudeville politics that nausea cannot be far off in the natural course of human endurance, and even the galleries are exhibiting signs of fatigue. The last to learn of his passing will be the stage player himself, who will stalk in before the footlights as is his wont some fine evening, with tense throttle and protruding chest, to look out upon empty chairs and open exits. Then the orchestra will play a dirge and Richard will loudly propose to exchange his kingdom for a lop-eared burro.

A strong con-talk is a good thing in its place, but too much of it is likely to bring on ennui. We of the wide prairies are beginning to have little pains in the gastric region as a result of being overdosed with language. Fierce and furious fulminations of political piccadories, mingled with loud, piercing shrieks of the octopus, lead the stranger to believe that instead of visiting the land of the Fair God, he is entering the Chamber of Horrors. Little wonder that the business interests of this State have become terrorized, or that men of timorous nature have taken to the brush in a paroxysm of fright. One Oklahoma politician with a brimming reservoir of language and an office in sight can attack some convenient dragon in its lair and stir up more blood-curdling, demoniacal din than was dreamed of in the Apocalypse.

It is really frightening—to those who are guided only by auricular evidence. But it is not so alarming to one who has seen a legislator vociferously voting for a prohibition bill and afterward dickering with a boot-legger for a pint o' Bourbon; or has observed another "reformer," who supported an anti-gambling bill, toying with little discs in a poker game; or has noted a great spell-binder on the anti-trust bill joining an association to put up the price of his own cotton.

The timid need not take wings.

Chinese do not burn their houses these days to roast a pig. They get a better roast without disturbing the house at all. But the story ought to be read following every incendiary political harangue handed out in this neck o' the woods.

It really ought.

Reform and reason make an ideal team. They should be hooked up and kept busy.

CHARGES FRAUD IN LANDS OF CREEKS.

Creek Attorney Aids President in Fight Against Haskell.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 28.—M. L. Mott, attorney for the Creek Indians, whose appointment is made with the approval of the secretary of the interior, made public today a statement concerning the transaction of Governor Haskell while a resident of Muskogee, in obtaining title to a large number of Muskogee town lots. Suit is pending against Haskell to recover much of this property for the Creek Indians, to whom it formerly belonged.

Prior to 1890 the only title to town lots in Muskogee was the right of occupancy or possession, obtained from some Indian citizen who had "squatted" on the land when all the land of the Creeks were held in common. When the Creek lands were allotted and provision made for the sale of town lots at public auction to the highest bidder, actual citizens of the different towns were permitted to reserve one lot for a homestead and another for business purposes, for which they were required to pay only half the appraised value fixed by the federal government. All other lots were to be sold at public auction to the highest bidder.

To evade this latter requirement and thereby purchase town lots at half their appraised value, different persons created "straw" men or "dummies" who were represented to the townsite commissions as actual and lawful occupants of lots. When patents were issued to "dummies," many of whom lived in other states, the "dummies" gave a quit-claim deed to the manipulators.

It is this kind of manipulation charged against Governor Haskell by Mott.

"I AM A DEMOCRAT"

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The feature of W. J. Bryan's tour up State today was the appearance on the platform here tonight of former United States Senator David B. Hill. It was the first time in several years that Mr. Hill had attended such a gathering, so that when he stepped forward as chairman to introduce democracy's leader the great crowd which packed the hall where the meeting was held arose and wildly cheered.

Bryan Absolutely Right.

"Although not connected with politics," said Mr. Hill, "I reiterate that I am heartily in favor of the election of the democratic national and state tickets. I am not so partisan, however, that I would support the party right or wrong, but permit me to say that I support the national ticket in this campaign because, in my judgment, our presidential candidate, who honors us with his presence here tonight, is absolutely right upon every contended question in this campaign. I am for him for I sincerely believe the interest of the country will be served by his election. It is time for a change in the administration in the government; a change of measures and men. Our candidate owes this nomination not to any one man nor any set of men, but to the people themselves. If elected he will be the president himself and a dummy for no man. He will not be led around with a string like a great big caged bear."

Ovation for Bryan.

The democratic candidate received an ovation as he arose to speak. He was cheered to the echo and the audience reluctantly obeyed his gesture to them to become quiet. He expressed his appreciation of the cordial welcome he had received "in the capital of our nation's greatest state," and replied to Mr. Hill by saying:

"I appreciate the more than generous words employed by Senator Hill in presenting me to you. One of the pleasures of this campaign is the unity that manifests itself in the democratic party. As the candidate for president of the United States I have behind me a united democratic party and in front of me a scared republican party."

He declared that the democratic party was full of fight, while the republican party was full of fright. Confidence in Victory.

"I believe," he continued, "that we are going to win a great victory, and, my friends, I am glad that Senator Hill, the hero of so many battlefields, is fighting by my side, prepared to share with me the joys of a democratic triumph. This victory would be incomplete if it were a sectional victory. But I believe that this victory is going to be won by the co-operation of the east and the west, the north and the south, and that it will cement the democratic party as a fighting force."

Mr. Bryan said he would present "some evidence that will encourage and some arguments in behalf of our position."

First, however, he urged support of the democratic state and congressional tickets, because, he said, they were fighting on the same platform and bearing the brunt of the battle, and therefore deserved the people's suffrage. As he did at Schenectady and other places, he laid stress on the plank for publicity of campaign contributions before election.

Campaign Publicity.

"I asked my national committee," he said, "to publish contributions before the election, and it has done so. I asked our congressional committee to follow the example of the national committee, and it has done so. Mr. Taft's national committee has promised to publish the contributions after the election, when he knows it will be too late to be of advantage to the voters, but the republican congressional committee has not promised to publish the contributions even after election. I now ask Mr. Taft if he will request the congressional committee to announce at once that publication will be made after the election. If not, we will have a right to conclude that the congressional committee of the republican party has to receive the funds that are too tainted to go into treasury of the national committee."

"The conscience of the American people," he said, "demanded the inauguration of an era of honesty in politics."

"Can Mr. Taft afford to ignore this demand?" he inquired.

Taft's Labor Record.

Mr. Bryan repeatedly referred to Mr. Taft's labor record. He declared Mr. Taft was the most objectionable public man to laboring men the country has ever known.

Preliminaries for Court House.

The county commissioners are considering the propositions of architects with plans and specifications for a court house for Pontotoc county. Among those conferring about the matter, is Patrick Henry Withers, of Guthrie.

It is to be trusted the preliminaries for a county court house will be completed at the earliest practical time, and the structure built as soon as possible.

Stomach troubles would more quickly disappear if the idea of treating the cause, rather than the effect, would come into practice. CHAPMAN THE SHOE MAN

INCINERATIVE REFORMATION

By Clark Hudson, in Sturm's Oklahoma Magazine

ONE of the old school readers there was a story of the discovery of roast pork. The honor, according to the story, belongs to a Chinese, who kept his pigs among other bric-a-brac in the parlor, from which they were wont to forage into the dining room and recuperate in the reception hall while Mrs. Chink was dusting the piano. At a very unfortunate moment the residence caught fire and was consumed, burning strongly enough to roast the porcine inhabitants thereof, which were found in the debris and ashes, done to a turn. When Mr. Chink arrived and saw the result of the conflagration, he was dismayed; but not until he discovered that his pigs had been burned did he give way to fits of uncontrollable grief. Between sobs he reached down with trembling hands to touch the remains with a last loving caress, whereupon his fingers were burned. Naturally he immersed the scorched digits in his mouth, when lo! his palate was plunged in pleasurable sensations. Not sure of himself he repeated the performance, this time with less grief, and noted the effect. Thereupon he fell to, and, while he carried his hands in bandages for weeks afterwards, he nearly finished the pig. His friends were notified of the wonderful discovery and began to set fire to their houses, until a conflagration promised to envelop the whole country. It was apparent that a house must be burned each time roast pork was on the bill of fare. As I remember, the story does not carry the history of this affair further, but I assume that some martyrs were sacrificed before any other suggestion as to methods for roasting pork was accepted. In the meantime, spare-rib came rather high.

The man who is likely to become a pessimist regarding mankind while pondering a human history filled with such instances may take unto himself consolation in the reflection that, sooner or later, reason usually prevails over all cerebral infirmities excepting incurable insanity.

All this leads up to another look at the story of the Chinese, and an attempt at application to a certain variety of politician infesting and festering the body politic.

Men have not advanced far along the line of reasoning faculties since the Mongolian's discovery when they still burn down houses to get a mess of roast pork.

Speaker Cannon asserts that a Congressman is the greatest coward in America. His statement is borne out by the Congressmen themselves, every time they are whipped in by the Committee on Rules. But not only are Congressmen afflicted thus, for all public officials appear to suffer in a degree; and cowardice blended with hypocrisy creates that most loathsome of political deformities—the demagogue.

A little over a year ago, I had occasion to say a few words in these pages concerning the demagogue—to defend this reptilian creature from certain slighting remarks which those of flippant mind were threatening to make and thus damage a leading infant industry in the new State. In this manner I believe I succeeded in protecting a sufficient number of the species here to at least prevent extinction, and in this statement I submit in evidence, as Exhibit A, the record of statesmanship in the State since that defense appeared. Undoubtedly there can be discerned in this record a sufficient number of tracks to prove the presence of the genera.

It has never been thoroughly plain to me why it is that a man who will converse rationally and discuss philosophically in private conversation will become a fanatic when chosen a member of a legislative or deliberative aggregation, but I have known men to butt into public life by taking first base on a fumble and immediately become possessed by the idea that they were the chosen evangelists of the millennium. There is not much chance for serious argument against the assertion that many men who have become inmates of a public office have been sent to the wrong institution.

Your effervescent statesman is the dry rot that is infesting our political growth. Let a reasonable reform become apparently popular and he veers around at once to assume its leadership, traveling in a swirl of dust like a vaquero heading off a stampede, emitting noises of indescribable horror and exuding copious quantities of sudorous effluvia. Chances are that ere the public learns what the noise is all about he will be at the head of the column with a long tail-feather in his hatband and issuing orders through the megaphone. Thereupon, the public may be led, for a time, by the author of maudlin outcries, into the morass and jungle of fallacy and failure, instead of into the light of reform. The seed of reformation, be it never so healthy, and in the most productive soil, may sprout and spear with promise; but the plant must wither in a simoon of hot air proceeding from raucous and spumiferous demagogues.

Passion and prejudice, the twin progenitors of political insanity, the boll-weevil of intelligence, are the weapons of irresponsible leadership. They are the artillery and side arms of truculent and sanguiniferous politicians, who strut, stride and gesticulate around the country, seeking to overwhelm the public with doltish dogmatism and a deluge of delirious rhetoric.

All for what? Burning down houses to get a mess of roast pork—for themselves.

A man who can or will see but one side is a malformation and his election to a public office is a calamity. His caliber decreases in inverse ratio to the noise of his oracular discharge.

Suppose the people of Oklahoma, for instance, should firmly conclude to put business principles into operation in their public affairs; to control and regulate their business of state as they would their own private matters; to apply common sense and fairness to administration; to lay a strong hand upon all seekers after special privilege whether it be a criminal trust or the match-borrowers' union. And suppose, further, that in order to carry out this policy they should make it their business to nominate and elect in every instance men of reason instead of rant; of business qualifications instead of strepitous verbosity. What would become of the prevalent demagogue?

What, indeed?

He must, perforce, take to the chapparal, where the yawning solitude can swallow up his output without disturbing the progress of civilization. I am convinced, even in the darkest hours of dismay, that the time is soon to come when something besides a thick mat of hair and a wide-rimmed hat will be evidence of political sagacity and latecraft. When that happy hour arrives it will be possible to assemble ourselves in peace and obey that old command: "Come, let us reason together."

Some learned philosophers profess to believe that the American people like so well to be gulled that there will be a continued supremacy for the vaudeville "supe" on our political stage. It's a pessimistic prediction. The country has had so much of vaudeville politics that nausea cannot be far off in the natural course of human endurance, and even the galleries are exhibiting signs of fatigue. The last to learn of his passing will be the stage player himself, who will stalk in before the footlights as is his wont some fine evening, with tense throttle and protruding chest, to look out upon empty chairs and open exits. Then the orchestra will play a dirge and Richard will loudly propose to exchange his kingdom for a lop-eared burro.

A strong con-talk is a good thing in its place, but too much of it is likely to bring on ennui. We of the wide prairies are beginning to have little pains in the gastric region as a result of being overdosed with language. Fierce and furious fulminations of political piccadories, mingled with loud, piercing shrieks of the octopus, lead the stranger to believe that instead of visiting the land of the Fair God, he is entering the Chamber of Horrors. Little wonder that the business interests of this State have become terrorized, or that men of timorous nature have taken to the brush in a paroxysm of fright. One Oklahoma politician with a brimming reservoir of language and an office in sight can attack some convenient dragon in its lair and stir up more blood-curdling, demoniacal din than was dreamed of in the Apocalypse.

It is really frightening—to those who are guided only by auricular evidence. But it is not so alarming to one who has seen a legislator voraciously voting for a prohibition bill and afterward dickering with a boot-legger for a pint o' Bourbon; or has observed another "reformer," who supported an anti-gambling bill, toying with little discs in a poker game; or has noted a great spell-binder on the anti-trust bill joining an association to put up the price of his own cotton.

The timid need not take wings.

Chinese do not burn their houses these days to roast a pig. They get a better roast without disturbing the house at all. But the story ought to be read following every incendiary political harangue handed out in this neck o' the woods.

It really ought.

Reform and reason make an ideal team. They should be hooked up and kept busy.

CHARGES FRAUD IN LANDS OF CREEKS.

Creek Attorney Aids President in Fight Against Haskell.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 28.—M. L. Mott, attorney for the Creek Indians, whose appointment is made with the approval of the secretary of the interior, made public today a statement concerning the transaction of Governor Haskell while a resident of Muskogee, in obtaining title to a large number of Muskogee town lots. Suit is pending against Haskell to recover much of this property for the Creek Indians, to whom it formerly belonged.

Prior to 1890 the only title to town lots in Muskogee was the right of occupancy or possession, obtained from some Indian citizen who had "squatted" on the land when all the land of the Creeks were held in common. When the Creek lands were allotted and provision made for the sale of town lots at public auction to the highest bidder, actual citizens of the different towns were permitted to reserve one lot for a homestead and another for business purposes, for which they were required to pay only half the appraised value fixed by the federal government. All other lots were to be sold at public auction to the highest bidder.

To evade this latter requirement and thereby purchase town lots at half their appraised value, different persons created "straw" men or "dummies" who were represented to the townsite commissions as actual and lawful occupants of lots. When patents were issued to "dummies," many of whom lived in other states, the "dummies" gave a quit-claim deed to the manipulators.

It is this kind of manipulation charged against Governor Haskell by Mott.

"I AM A DEMOCRAT"

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The feature of W. J. Bryan's tour up State today was the appearance on the platform here tonight of former United States Senator David B. Hill. It was the first time in several years that Mr. Hill had attended such a gathering, so that when he stepped forward as chairman to introduce democracy's leader the great crowd which packed the hall where the meeting was held arose and wildly cheered.

Bryan Absolutely Right.

"Although not connected with politics," said Mr. Hill, "I reiterate that I am heartily in favor of the election of the democratic national and state tickets. I am not so partisan, however, that I would support the party right or wrong, but permit me to say that I support the national ticket in this campaign because, in my judgment, our presidential candidate, who honors us with his presence here tonight, is absolutely right upon every contended question in this campaign. I am for him for I sincerely believe the interest of the country will be served by his election. It is time for a change in the administration in the government: a change of measures and men. Our candidate owes the nomination not to any one man nor any set of men, but to the people themselves. If elected he will be the president himself and a dummy for no man. He will not be led around with a string like a great big caged bear."

Ovation for Bryan.

The democratic candidate received an ovation as he arose to speak. He was cheered to the echo and the audience reluctantly obeyed his gesture to them to become quiet. He expressed his appreciation of the cordial welcome he had received "in the capital of our nation's greatest state," and replied to Mr. Hill by saying:

"I appreciate the more than generous words employed by Senator Hill in presenting me to you. One of the pleasures of this campaign is the unity that manifests itself in the democratic party. As the candidate for president of the United States I have behind me a united democratic party and in front of me a scared republican party."

He declared that the democratic party was full of fight, while the republican party was full of fright. Confidence in Victory.

"I believe," he continued, "that we are going to win a great victory, and, my friends, I am glad that Senator Hill, the hero of so many battlefields, is fighting by my side, prepared to share with me the joys of a democratic triumph. This victory would be incomplete if it were a sectional victory. But I believe that this victory is going to be won by the co-operation of the east and the west, the north and the south, and that it will cement the democratic party as a fighting force."

Mr. Bryan said he would present "some evidence that will encourage and some arguments in behalf of our position."

First, however, he urged support of the democratic state and congressional tickets, because, he said, they were fighting on the same platform and bearing the brunt of the battle, and therefore deserved the people's suffrage. As he did at Schenectady and other places, he laid stress on the plank for publicity of campaign contributions before election.

Campaign Publicity.

"I asked my national committee," he said, "to publish contributions before the election, and it has done so. I asked our congressional committee to follow the example of the national committee, and it has done so. Mr. Taft's national committee has promised to publish the contributions after the election, when he knows it will be too late to be of advantage to the voters, but the republican congressional committee has not promised to publish the contributions even after election. I now ask Mr. Taft if he will request the congressional committee to announce at once that publication will be made after the election. If not, we will have a right to conclude that the congressional committee of the republican party has to receive the funds that are too tainted to go into treasury of the national committee."

"The conscience of the American people," he said, "demanded the inauguration of an era of honesty in politics."

"Can Mr. Taft afford to ignore this demand?" he inquired.

Taft's Labor Record.

Mr. Bryan repeatedly referred to Mr. Taft's labor record. He declared Mr. Taft was the most objectionable public man to laboring men the country has ever known.

Preliminaries for Court House.

The county commissioners are considering the propositions of architects with plans and specifications for a court house for Pontotoc county. Among those conferring about the matter, is Patrick Henry Withers, of Guthrie.

It is to be trusted the preliminaries for a county court house will be completed at the earliest practical time, and the structure built as soon as possible.

We have sold goods in Ada six years, but we don't ask you to trade with us for the reason we do business in Ada or because we are friends. Neither do we send you prices and descriptions and insist on you sending us the money without personal inspection of our goods, as catalogue houses do, but ask for your trade on the broad ground of good, reliable goods, sold at fair prices and easy terms, with the fact made prominent that we carry a good reliable stock.

We call special attention to our Rockers shipped direct from the factory; no middle man's profit. They are selling fast. Six Upholster Rockers went out Friday and Saturday. We placed rush orders today to supply the demand. When you are in our store, ask to see our Iron Beds, especially a Vernis Martin, two inch post for $18.00. We solicit your inspection of our stock.

Cough Caution

Never positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold—only you should always be careful and use the irritant bronchial tubes Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison It's strange how some things finally come about For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium Chloroform or similar poisons And now a little late though—Congress says Puriton the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture Good Very good After for this very reason molasses and others should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and now the medicine itself must be law be on the label And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know best a truly remarkable cough remedy Take no chance then, particularly with your children Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference No poison marks there! Stomach troubles would more quickly disappear if the idea of treating the cause, rather than the effect, would come into practice. A tiny, inside, hidden nerve says Dr Shoop, governs and gives strength to the stomach. A branch also goes to the heart, and one to the kidneys. When these 'inside nerves' fail then the organs must falter. Dr Shoop's Restorative is directed specifically to these failing nerves. Within 58 hours after starting the Restorative treatment patients say they realize a gain. Sold by G M Ramsey 156-1m

THE SHOE MAN

INCINERATIVE REFORMATION

By Clark Hudson, in Sturm's Oklahoma Magazine

ONE of the old school readers there was a story of the discovery of roast pork. The honor, according to the story, belongs to a Chinese, who kept his pigs among other bric-a-brac in the parlor, from which they were wont to forage into the dining room and recuperate in the reception hall while Mrs. Chink was dusting the piano. At a very unfortunate moment the residence caught fire and was consumed, burning strongly enough to roast the porcine inhabitants thereof, which were found in the debris and ashes, done to a turn. When Mr. Chink arrived and saw the result of the conflagration, he was dismayed; but not until he discovered that his pigs had been burned did he give way to fits of uncontrollable grief. Between sobs he reached down with trembling hands to touch the remains with a last loving caress, whereupon his fingers were burned. Naturally he immersed the scorched digits in his mouth, when lo! his palate was plunged in pleasurable sensations. Not sure of himself he repeated the performance, this time with less grief, and noted the effect. Thereupon he fell to, and, while he carried his hands in bandages for weeks afterwards, he nearly finished the pig. His friends were notified of the wonderful discovery and began to set fire to their houses, until a conflagration promised to envelop the whole country. It was apparent that a house must be burned each time roast pork was on the bill of fare. As I remember, the story does not carry the history of this affair further, but I assume that some martyrs were sacrificed before any other suggestion as to methods for roasting pork was accepted. In the meantime, spare-rib came rather high.

The man who is likely to become a pessimist regarding mankind while pondering a human history filled with such instances may take unto himself consolation in the reflection that, sooner or later, reason usually prevails over all cerebral infirmities excepting incurable insanity.

All this leads up to another look at the story of the Chinese, and an attempt at application to a certain variety of politician infesting and festering the body politic.

Men have not advanced far along the line of reasoning faculties since the Mongolian's discovery when they still burn down houses to get a mess of roast pork.

Speaker Cannon asserts that a Congressman is the greatest coward in America. His statement is borne out by the Congressmen themselves, every time they are whipped in by the Committee on Rules. But not only are Congressmen afflicted thus, for all public officials appear to suffer in a degree; and cowardice blended with hypocrisy creates that most loathsome of political deformities—the demagogue.

A little over a year ago, I had occasion to say a few words in these pages concerning the demagogue—to defend this reptilian creature from certain slighting remarks which those of flippant mind were threatening to make and thus damage a leading infant industry in the new State. In this manner I believe I succeeded in protecting a sufficient number of the species here to at least prevent extinction, and in this statement I submit in evidence, as Exhibit A, the record of statesmanship in the State since that defense appeared. Undoubtedly there can be discerned in this record a sufficient number of tracks to prove the presence of the genera.

It has never been thoroughly plain to me why it is that a man who will converse rationally and discuss philosophically in private conversation will become a fanatic when chosen a member of a legislative or deliberative aggregation, but I have known men to butt into public life by taking first base on a fumble and immediately become possessed by the idea that they were the chosen evangelists of the millennium. There is not much chance for serious argument against the assertion that many men who have become inmates of a public office have been sent to the wrong institution.

Your effervescent statesman is the dry rot that is infesting our political growth. Let a reasonable reform become apparently popular and he veers around at once to assume its leadership, traveling in a swirl of dust like a vaquero heading off a stampede, emitting noises of indescribable horror and exuding copious quantities of sudorous effluvia. Chances are that ere the public learns what the noise is all about he will be at the head of the column with a long tail-feather in his hatband and issuing orders through the megaphone. Thereupon, the public may be led, for a time, by the author of maudlin outcries, into the morass and jungle of fallacy and failure, instead of into the light of reform. The seed of reformation, be it never so healthy, and in the most productive soil, may sprout and spear with promise; but the plant must wither in a smother of hot air proceeding from raucous and spumiferous demagogues.

Passion and prejudice, the twin progenitors of political insanity, the boll-weevil of intelligence, are the weapons of irresponsible leadership. They are the artillery and side arms of truculent and sanguiniferous politicians, who strut, stride and gesticulate around the country, seeking to overwhelm the public with doltish dogmatism and a deluge of delirious rhetoric.

All for what? Burning down houses to get a mess of roast pork—for themselves.

A man who can or will see but one side is a malformation and his election to a public office is a calamity. His caliber decreases in inverse ratio to the noise of his oracular discharge.

Suppose the people of Oklahoma, for instance, should firmly conclude to put business principles into operation in their public affairs; to control and regulate their business of state as they would their own private matters; to apply common sense and fairness to administration; to lay a strong hand upon all seekers after special privilege whether it be a criminal trust or the match-borrowers' union. And suppose, further, that in order to carry out this policy they should make it their business to nominate and elect in every instance men of reason instead of rant; of business qualifications instead of strepituous verbosity. What would become of the prevalent demagogue?

What, indeed?

He must, perforce, take to the chapparral, where the yawning solitude can swallow up his output without disturbing the progress of civilization. I am convinced, even in the darkest hours of dismay, that the time is soon to come when something besides a thick mat of hair and a wide-rimmed hat will be evidence of political sagacity and tactcraft. When that happy hour arrives it will be possible to assemble ourselves in peace and obey that old command: "Come, let us reason together."

Some learned philosophers profess to believe that the American people like so well to be gulled that there will be a continued supremacy for the vaudeville "supe" on our political stage. It's a pessimistic prediction. The country has had so much of vaudeville politics that nausea cannot be far off in the natural course of human endurance, and even the galleries are exhibiting signs of fatigue. The last to learn of his passing will be the stage player himself, who will stalk in before the footlights as is his wont some fine evening, with tense throttle and protruding chest, to look out upon empty chairs and open exits. Then the orchestra will play a dirge and Richard will loudly propose to exchange his kingdom for a lop-eared burro.

A strong con-talk is a good thing in its place, but too much of it is likely to bring on ennui. We of the wide prairies are beginning to have little pains in the gastric region as a result of being overdosed with language. Fierce and furious fulminations of political piccadories, mingled with loud, piercing shrieks of the octopus, lead the stranger to believe that instead of visiting the land of the Fair God, he is entering the Chamber of Horrors. Little wonder that the business interests of this State have become terrorized, or that men of timorous nature have taken to the brush in a paroxysm of fright. One Oklahoma politician with a brimming reservoir of language and an office in sight can attack some convenient dragon in its lair and stir up more blood-curdling, demoniacal din than was dreamed of in the Apocalypse.

It is really frightening—to those who are guided only by auricular evidence. But it is not so alarming to one who has seen a legislator vociferously voting for a prohibition bill and afterward dickering with a boot-legger for a pint o' Bourbon; or has observed another "reformer," who supported an anti-gambling bill, toying with little discs in a poker game; or has noted a great spell-binder on the anti-trust bill joining an association to put up the price of his own cotton.

The timid need not take wings.

Chinese do not burn their houses these days to roast a pig. They get a better roast without disturbing the house at all. But the story ought to be read following every incendiary political harangue handed out in this neck o' the woods.

It really ought.

Reform and reason make an ideal team. They should be hooked up and kept busy.
